

Regional Humanitarian Partnership Week (RHPW)

| Asia & the Pacific 2025

BEYOND EMERGENCIES: REFRAMING HUMANITARIANISM FOR A CHANGING WORLD

In a year of shrinking humanitarian budgets, climate shocks, and deepening crises, the Regional Humanitarian Partnership Week Asia and the Pacific 2025 brought together aid practitioners from across 38 countries for three days of solutions-focused dialogue in Bangkok.

KEY CONVERSATIONS & PATHWAYS AHEAD

Mobilising Compassion:

Reclaim humanitarian action with empathy, solidarity, and real experiences. Humanitarian Story Circles showed that compassion is lived daily through caring, adapting, and sustaining dignity, not just an abstract idea.

Lead Locally

Shifting power and resources to local organisations, women's groups, youth networks, and organisations of persons with disabilities.

Integrate humanitarian response with climate adaptation, social protection, and risk reduction

Act on Climate

Finance Differently

Diversify funding through blended finance, insurance, and accessible digital tools.

Apply AI and digital platforms to improve response while safeguarding inclusion and data rights.

Use Tech Responsibly

Stay Principled

Uphold dignity and accountability in fragile and politically contested environments

Reflections

“RHPW reinforced a powerful truth; communities are not beneficiaries, they are protagonists of change.”

“RHPW reminded us that real partnerships are built on trust, humility, and shared responsibility, not just coordination and funding.”

“This time, RHPW showed that humanitarian actors are ready to reframe aid by putting crises affected communities at the center, diversified financing, and dignity in every response.”

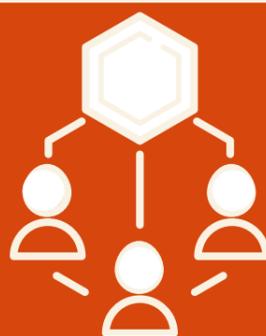

Voices at RHPW

Representing civil society, governments, UN agencies, private sector partners, academics, and crisis-affected community leaders, this year we had:

517 Participants

279 Organisations

38 Countries

A GLOBAL NGO NETWORK FOR PRINCIPLED AND EFFECTIVE HUMANITARIAN ACTION

OCHA

RHPW 2025 | Asia & the Pacific

Where hearts met, ideas flourished, and shared visions shaped pathways toward progress, prosperity, and a better world